ABOUT ME

About me

I'm enthusiastic and curious college student working towards accomplishing my goals. Since I always liked to create, solve riddles, try new stuff and work with other people, I found myself in software development pretty easily.

During my studies I worked on few projects, both individually and in the team. I also participated in college hackaton where me and my colleagues built application for managing events.

While working on those projects I learned some of the programming languages/frameworks and learned working with databases. Currently I'm working on web application which purpose is to make journey through Bosnia easier for tourists.

COMMUNICATION AND INTERPERSONAL SKILLS

Personal skills

As part of high school debate team "Ad Factum" I developed a lot of skills like communication, public speaking, critical thinking, researching, analyzing and many more which I later put in use during my studies and projects.

As part time tour guide I learned to adapt to various situations, solve problems, manage time efficiently etc. These skills have also been very useful during my studies.
